Roland Systems Group Launches V-MixingSystem.com – a Website Dedicated to Users of Their Popular V-Mixing System

October 11th, 2013

Los Angeles – Roland Systems Group (RSG) is excited to introduce a newly launched website - www.vmixingsystem.com - a home for users of the V-Mixing System. This website provides V-Mixing System owners a medium in which to share stories, videos, photos, libraries, system diagrams, applications and have quick access to tutorials and training videos.

This international site features users from around the world. Browsing through the videos, quotes, and photos reveals applications including live production, broadcast, worship, sports, and education. The site is excellent for explaining the power and possibilities of the V-Mixing System that includes digital consoles, digital snakes, personal mixing and multi-channel playback & recording. Visitors can learn about the many possibilities and what makes the V-Mixing System one of the most popular and most comprehensive, end-to-end, digital audio systems on the market today.

V-Mixing System Users are encouraged to share their story by visiting the site www.vmixingsystem.com and follow the link at the top of the home page, which also includes connections to the RSG social media sites.
