

Tim Henry to Oversee North American Sales at Vaddio

Seasoned video technology alum added to Vaddio sales team

January 6, 2014

Vaddio announces the appointment of video technology alum, Tim Henry, to Director of North American Sales. Tim brings over 25 years of experience in video technology, with the past 15 as National Sales Manager for Sony Electronics.

At Sony Electronics Henry created, managed and expanded a team of manufacturer rep firms, direct outside personnel and an inside sales support network. Under Henry's direction, Sony Electronics leveraged several new OEM business relationships within the videoconferencing, telemedicine and professional AV markets. He is a three-time inductee into the prestigious Sony Samurai Society, as well as a five-time top achiever award winner at Sony.

Prior to joining Sony Electronics, Henry was the Eastern Regional Sales Manager for InterTest, a New Jersey-based rep firm and manufacturer of specialized cameras systems. While at InterTest, Henry achieved a U.S. patent for VIBES system that he co-developed for the inspection of jet aircraft engines.

“From the quality of their people and their products, to the commitment to complete customer satisfaction, I am excited about joining the team at Vaddio,” explains Henry. “As a long time supplier/partner to Vaddio I have watched the tremendous growth of the company and I am honored to be a part of that continued growth.”