

NORTHWEST AUDIO VISUAL INTEGRATION LEADERS NEURILINK AND BLUE SKY JOIN FORCES

BOISE, Idaho – (September 20, 2017) – Neurilink, a leading audio visual integrator based in Boise, Idaho, is expanding in the Northwest with the acquisition of Seattle’s Blue Sky Integrated Technologies. The joining of these two companies under the Neurilink brand is part of planned strategic growth to better serve the custom audio visual design and integration needs of the Northwest.

From planning and design through technology installation and training, the company provides audio visual collaboration solutions for conference rooms, classrooms, auditoriums, training rooms, operations centers, and many other unique spaces in industries including corporate, government, healthcare and education.

Recent projects completed in the Northwest by the two companies include work for Redfin, the Community Health Plan of Washington and Delta Dental in Washington as well as the J.R. Simplot Headquarters, Saint Alphonsus and the City of Boise in Idaho.

“We are proud to be based in one of the nation’s fastest growing metros – Boise, Idaho – but our aspirations don’t end at the state line,” said Neurilink President Mike Fornander. “While we’ve designed solutions for clients from coast to coast our primary focus is the Northwest. Joining with Blue Sky allows us to diversify our expertise and broaden our footprint in Seattle.”

Blue Sky and Neurilink are known as employers of choice in their fields, having been recognized by the global alliance PSNI as best places to work in the AV industry. The combined team of 46 will continue to work from established offices in south Seattle and downtown Boise.

“It was apparent early on in our discussions that our cultures and collaborative approach with our clients were in sync,” said Laura Moorhead, Blue Sky principal.

“Joining with Neurilink expands our technological expertise to ensure we are big enough to provide best-in-class solutions for large complex projects yet small enough to remain an accessible and trusted partner.”

Moorhead and fellow Blue Sky principal Greg Tazioli have joined Neurilink’s leadership team as vice presidents.
