HERMAN NOW OFFERS REVIT® BIM

Tampa, FL., Feb. 13, 2019 – Herman (www.Herman-IS.com) a leading provider of professional AV products, procurement services, and labor resources to systems integrators in the commercial AV industry, now offers Revit modeling from our certified professionals.

"We are thrilled to offer our systems integrator partners a new service, Building Information Modeling (BIM)," said Chris Bianchet, President of Herman Integration Services. "Revit BIM software has powerful advantages, but not all integrators are prepared to invest in new software. We invested in Revit so integrators can get their projects completed using our certified professionals without the upfront investment in new software and training."

Due to its multidisciplinary advantages, intelligent structure models, greater accuracy, and powerful visualizations, demand for Revit modeling is up. Integrators now have a partner to turn to that has made the upfront investment in both software and training so they are not required to be early adopters. They can, however, still offer this powerful modeling to their customers.
